In everyone's life, there are at least some moments when he or she becomes a philosopher. Humans are destined to philosophize, whether they want to or not. To help them walk their first steps, Joseph Bochenski has written this book. It has been called The Golden Classic of treasured avenues leading into philosophical debates, and has initiated many, many novices into the fascinating world of philosophy.

Drawn from a very popular series of radio lectures on basic philosophical issues, the discourse takes us from Plato to Wittgenstein, from Kant to Aristotle, and back. And you don't feel overwhelmed at all! A crystal clear introduction to the main philosophical issues, such as truth, thinking, laws, values, humanity, and society.
