The Guardian of Gobeklitepe: The World's Oldest Temple Yonca Eldener

Gobeklitepe, the oldest temple in the world, awakened from its 12,000 years of sleep to tell hacker Kamil a secret. A secret, locked behind the sealed tongue of its guardian, that can only be heard by to the wise and capable...

Kamil is forced to unravel Gobeklitepe's mysteries when a stranger from the southeastern Turkish town of Urfa arrives on his doorstep, asking to buy his house. Kamil, the only Jew left in ancient Carian city of Milas, just buried his linguist mother, but he has no time to mourn when the stranger is murdered and he becomes the prime suspect.

With police bearing down on him and the daughter of the murdered man on his trail, Kamil locks himself in his room. He opens his computer as if entering a temple, and codes and information fly around him. His journey will take him far into the past, into his own history, his mother's life, and to Gobeklitepe, where humanity was transformed, the world's oldest beliefs rediscovered, and space and time were surpassed.
