A Message of Mean from Meghan: The First 100 Messages Meghan K Dwyer

Inspired by a college professor, Meghan Dwyer sat down one night and began writing about her day. A single parent at the time with a two year old son, she soon found she easily filled the pages of her notebook. Her professor laughed and cried at her stories and encouraged her to continue to keep her journal. Years later, with three additional children she found she had even more to write about. Putting down the pen and taking up the keyboard, she started a personal blog as a way to process her thoughts about parenting, society and life in general. The result ended in over four hundred readers following her blog. A small following, that's growing everyday. In this collection of journal entries you'll find Meghan's sarcasm and humor the key to not taking herself or life too seriously. So pull up chair and grab a glass of wine and enjoy relating to this mother of four as she shares her day and opinions with you.
