In Tune: The Role of the Spirit in Teaching and Learning Gerald N. Lund

In The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, we are all teachers. Not only do we have a glorious mandate to teach all nations the gospel, we also have numerous charges to teach one another the doctrine of the kingdom. In formal and informal settings, as parents or leaders or friends, we are constantly teaching and learning. Not only has the Lord commanded us to teach, but He has taught us what we are to teach and how we are to do it: diligently and by the power of the Spirit. But how do we know if we're doing it right. What signs can we watch for that the Spirit is actually present in a teaching setting? In this insightful companion volume to Hearing the Voice of the Lord, bestselling author Gerald N. Lund brings his decades of experience working in the Church Educational System to the topic of teaching and learning by the Spirit. He discusses common misconceptions, important questions we should ask about our teaching, and the role of the Holy Spirit. The Lord has given the responsibility to save His children to teachers, writes Elder Lund. The charge is clear. It is specific. It is inspiring. And, gratefully, the Lord blesses us greatly when we strive to carry out His will.
